The importance of periodically re-screening existing employees

1.

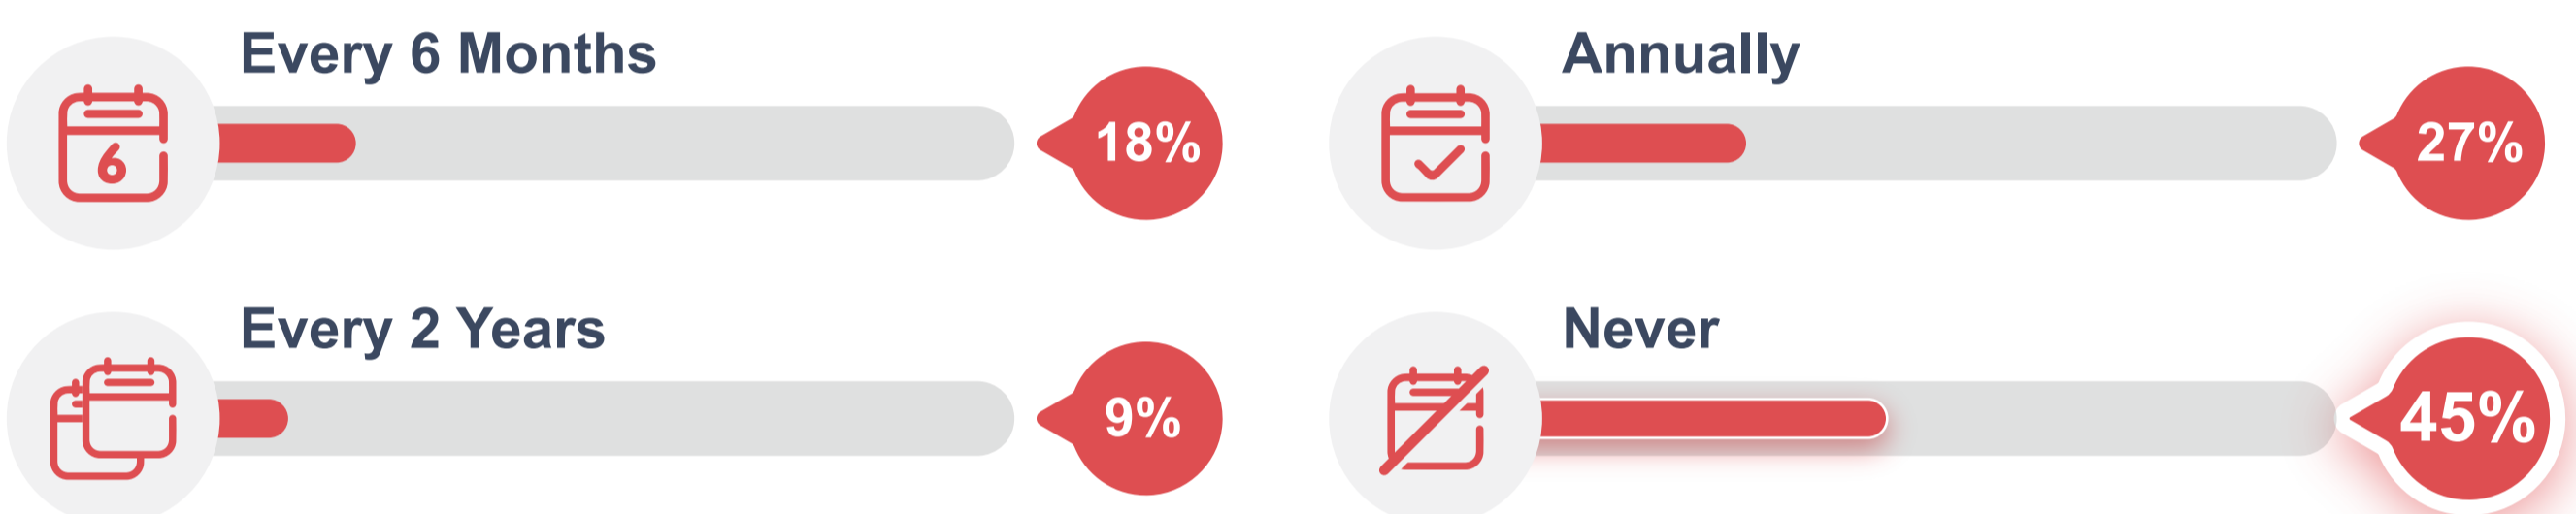

How would you best describe employee rescreening?

Rescreening is a straightforward process to adopt and rollout, across organisations, sectors and countries.

2.

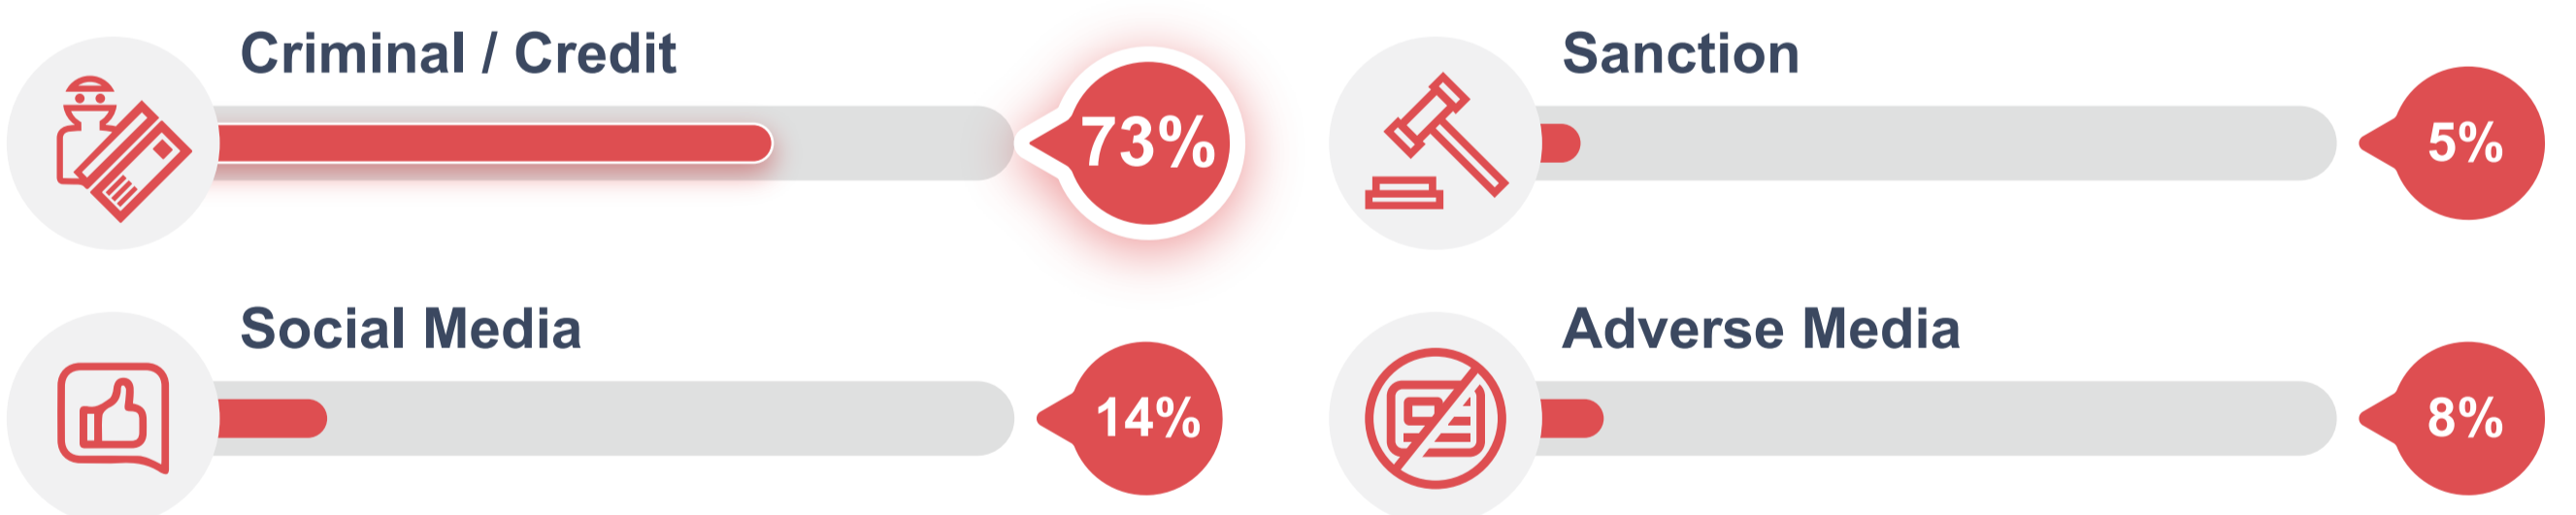

How often do you rescreen your employees?

It's important to periodically re-screen your employees at regular intervals.

3.

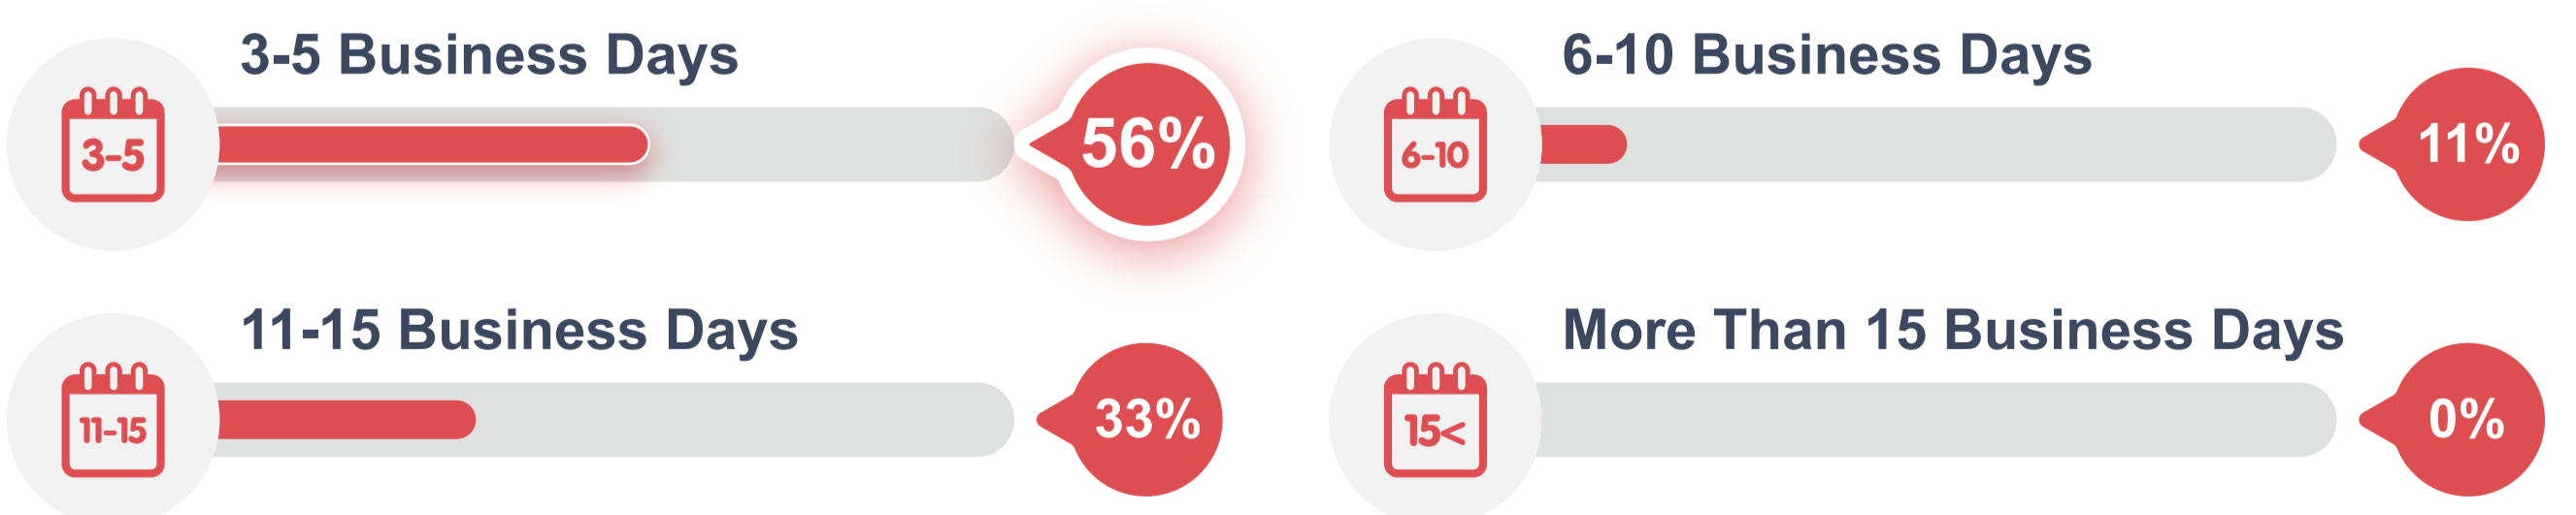

In your opinion, what is the most important check to conduct in employee rescreening?

Criminal checks are seen as the most important employee rescreening check. An employee's criminal record may change during their course of employment.

4.
